The Abyssinian chiefs of the army of King John, which had assembled on the Egyptian frontier, made their way into the Khedive's territory on the 11th inst. and succeeded in levying tribute from his subjects. (What King John claims is a concession of the free access to the sea which Abyssinia possessed before recent Egyptian encroachments. He strongly insists on freedom from customs dues between him and the Egyptian territory. He asks for free trade in arms and munitions of war, and a proper delimitation of frontiers. But between his mountains and the coast live hostile Mussulman tribes. The jealousies of rival chiefs in the interior have for a time kept peace on the frontier. TWO HUNDRED INFANTRY ORDERED TO BAL LINA-THE SLIGO PRISONERS PRACTICALLY AT LARGE-MONSTER MEETING CALLED AT KILLARNEY.

(BY CABLE TO THE HERALD. ]

LONDON, Dec. 13, 1879. It is stated that a detachment of 200 infantry has been ordered to proceed from Ballinrobe, Connaught, to the neighborhood of Ballina, in the same province, where a great land meeting is announced for Sunday, so as to be in readiness in the event of any disturbance. The case of James B. Killen, the Irish agitator, was yesterday taken from arranged by a Dublin solicitor. One Dublin correspondent says that the trials of Messrs. Davitt, Daly and Killen have been abandoned.

Another correspondent asserts that they have not all been abandoned, but be does not specify which of them is to be tried. The former account is probably correct. Messrs. Davitt and Daly are practically at large without bail, as they never gave bail for their appearance at Dublin. Placards have been posted throughout county Kerry, it is believed at the instance of The O'Donoghue, who has heretofore opposed the nationalists, calling for a monster meeting at Killarney on the 26th inst. The language of the placards is violent, but advises agitation within the law.

I BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.] LONDON, Dec. 13, 1879.

A Vienna despatch to the Times says :- "According to telegrams from St. Petersburg, published in the Wicker Tagblatt and the Pesther Lloyd, Prince Gortschakoff, after his return to the Russian capital, presented to the Czar a programme of his future policy. The basis of DETAILS OF THE ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP THE the programme is peace. Friendly relations with Austria-Hungary and Germany are recognized as indispensable. The programme is said to have on all points met with the approval of the Czar. A telegram from St. Petersburg to Berlin pos itively denies the statement that M. Walujeff is in disgrace, and that the Czar flung his constitutional projects into the fire when M. Walujefl submitted them. A St. Petersburg despatch to the Daily News says:-"Count Schouvaloff's sudden change of plans for the winter and his immediate return to St. Petersburg are regarded here as of great importance. The Count went to Varzin yesterday to see Prince Bismarck. Lord Dufferin, the British Ambassador to Russia, also arrived at Berlin on his way to St. Petersburg. It was expected that he would visit Prince Bismarck."

TRACKING THE CONSPIRATORS. It is authoritatively announced that the reports relative to fresh attempts against the life of the Czar published abroad are grossly exaggerated, though it is admitted that the police in investigating the circumstances of the recent attempted assassination of the Czar at Moscow made discoveries showing that fresh crime were contemplated, but it is impossible, for obvious reasons, to allow the details to be tele-graphed. It is reported on good authority that six prisoners who were tried at the same time as Mirsky, the assailant of General Drenteln. and acquitted, are still in prison. Mirsky's betrothed, Mile. Kestelmann, who was a witness at his trial, has since been arrested. Three per sons in whose possession petards were found have been arrested in Kieff. Previous to their arrest a bomb was exploded on the boulevard.

MOROISI, THE BAPHUTI.

THE BRITISH STORM THE AFRICAN CHIEFTAIN'S STRONGHOLD-HIS ALMOST IMPREGNABLE PO-SITION-HIS DEATH-SIEGE OF THE MOUN-TAIN WITH GUNS AND MORTARS.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

London, Dec. 13, 1879.

A despatch from Cape Town says:—"The Colonial forces successfully stormed Moroisi's mountain on the 20th of November. Chief Moroisi was killed during the fight. On the British side two colonists were wounded and two native allies were killed. The attack on Chief Secocoent has been postponed until the 27th of November." [After the capture of Cetywaye the feeling of security in South Africa was mainly disturbed by the hostile attitude of Secocoeni, and of the Baphuti chief Moroisi, who, in his mountain Baphuti chief Moroisi, who, in his mountain stronghold, persistently defield the forces sent against him. Major Nixon was therefore despatched by the British government to visit the latter place, and to report as to the nature of its position. The mountain is an isolated rugged kop, rising abruptly on the south bank of the on the south by a narrow neck. On the top there are several water tanks, and on the sides one west there is a ledge about ten yards broad, with a perpendicular rocky face cloping down three hundred or four hundred feet, with a similar face twenty or thirty feet from the shelf to the top of the mountain. There is only one passage leading up the mountain, very steep and in zig-zag form, and along this there are three lines of defonces, formed or stone walls built on natural ledges of rock, forming what are termed "schansen." Since March last Morolsi had held his own on this position. When the news of Cetywayo's troubles reached him he saw ing, and announced his intention of "coming down." A deputation with a white flag accordingly went up the hill to meet the surrend and he was seen squatting on a stone in the distance, also with a white flag. "Come down," shouted the British representatives. will not," retorted Moroisi. "I have submitted; so send me up some beef." "Come down," was all the reply he got; but "Why should I?" asked the chief. "I have submitted; go away and send me up some beel-and fuel." the British officer. "Nonsense," rejoined the Baphuti. "I have given in and confess myself beaten. Leave this and send me up some beef and some fuel—and some gunpowder." There was no debating the point with such a logician. Sir Garnet Wolseley decided upon using stronger arguments. Attempts were made on two occasions to storm the place, but without success, and it was then determined to invest the mountain, and pickets were posted at certain points day and night, while at the same time patrols harassed the rebel supporters in the neighorhood. The cordon of pickets, however, so loosely hemmed the extended base that the Baphutis repeated y passed through, especially on dark nights, and carried up commissariat supplies and cattle, with which they have enjoyed themselves in their besieged position. The last exploit recorded of them was that a number possessed them-selves of new blankets which were just issued to our native forces, and dressed in these came march ing and singing close by the main camp, palming themselves off as Fingoes. After receiving Major Nixon's report and consulting with the highest military authorities, the government resolved upon renewing the siege of the mountain with guns and mortars and to attempt to take the position at all hazards. DETAILS OF THE WAR BETWEEN RIVAL CHIEFS ON THE WEST COAST OF AFRICA.

The steamers Benguela and Biatra arrived in the Mersey on the 5th inst. from the west coast of Africa, bringing news of a serious outbreak at New Calabar which has been pending for some time, and which it not at once stopped is likely to extend to alarming proportions. According to the present information, which is not, however, very complete the conflict is between King Amschree, of New Calabar, and his followers, on the one hand, and a powerful chief, called Will Braid, and his adherents, on the other. Some time since the King of New Calabar died and the accession of Amachree to power does not seem to have given general satisfaction. The news by the Blaira says that the parties up to the news by the Elaira says that the parties up to the time the etenner left the vicinity had come into contact, and each side claimed the victory; while the leformation by the Benguela is that the latest reports pu, down the number of killed at 200, while the aftair was likely to spread, if not at once quellest, from Opedo to Brass, a distance of many miles. No quarter was shown to the wounded or to the prisoners, who were immediately killed and in many cases eaten by the lower classes of the natives. The intervention of the senior British naval officer had been sought by the Europeans to put an end to the conflict; but up to latest information he had not interfered, and it was thought that he would not do so unless some of the English factories were threatened or destroyed, or British subjects molested. Bonny is suffering almost equally with New Catabar, and the trade of the district was almost at a standatill. King Ja Ja was also reported to be collecting his forces and war material to join in the struggle, and in such an event the inhabitants of the three rivers would be drawn into the conflict. Her Majosty's ship Dido was at anchor outside of the bar at Bonny, ready to enter or send a boat in case of necessity. Her Majesty's ship Pioneer returned to Pernande Po on the 20th October, after a visit to the Emir of Nuppe, up the Niger, to present him with gifts from the British government. The members of the mission were received with the greatest hospitality, and were escorted to the city by a guard of honor of about 3,000 horsemen. The city contains about 150,000 inhabitants, chiefly Mohammedans. Shortly after her return the Pioneer was despatched again up the Niger to destroy the village of Onitsha, whose inhabitants have committed assaults and have also murdered British traders. The Governor also recently visited the Offars River to censure the inhabitants of a town called Makin, who for some time past have intercepted the cances of produce from the interior, and in many cases not being content with the produce they also took the crews. It was stated that one cance with £6000 worth of ivory on board got into the hands of these piratical natives.

THE CZAR'S ESCAPE.

IMPERIAL TRAIN-NARRATIVE OF A PASSEN-GEE-SEARCHING THE HOUSE.

luggage train, a part of which was destroyed by the explosion near Moscow, is published in the London papers of the 4th inst. According to this account, the train conveying the Emperor left the station for its departure. The luggage train, consisting of fourteen carriages and two locomotives, had been despatched half an hour previously, but by despatched half an hour previously, but by a fortunate chance the train in which the Czar travelled overtook the luggage train, and, passing it, left it some distance behind. In the luggage train were altogether fitty persons. When it was still about two and a half versts from the Moscow station a loud report was suddenly heard. The carriage in which the narrator was scated oscillated violently and then came to a standstill with a sharp jerk. The writer immediately left the carriage, and, looking round, perceived clear traces of an explosion. The first engine was detached from the train, and the other had left the rails, together with some of the carriages, while the remainder of the latter were standing right across the line. The fourth luggage wagon lay with its wheels upward. At the side of the line was visible a large cavity several feet deep. The noise of the explosion had attracted the police and a growd of people, who loudly expressed their horror at the invended attempt to destroy the life of the Emperor. The narrator hastened to the nearest telegraph station in order to forward a despatch, but found that communication was interrupted in consequence of the telegraph posts having been thrown down by the explosion. A pointsman and another railway official, who were in the immediate vicinity, appeared to be badly injured, but all the occupants of the train escaped with nothing more serious than the fright. The perpetrators of the crime doubtless thought that the Emperor was in the second train. The Public Prosecutor and a magistrate arrived at two c'clock this morning at the secone of the catastrophe, and, led by the traces of devastation left by the explosion, proceeded to the nearest house, which was empty.

The magistrate arrived at two c'clock this morning at the secone of the catastrophe, and, led by the fortunate chance the train in which the Czar at the scene of the estastrophe, and, led by the traces of devastation left by the explosion, proceeded to the nearest house, which was empty.

UNDER THE SKOW.

The magistrate discovered in the court yard, concealed under the snow some wires, connected with a battery placed in an outhouse, from which the passing trains could easily be seen. From inquiries made, it appeared that the house was bought in September last by a young man, who stated that he was a citizen of Tamara. He had been observed digging in the cellar by the neighbors, declaring as his reason for doing so that he wished to obtain some sand. In this way a passage for the train of powder connected with the mine was hollowed out. The house itself was poorly furnished. More wires were found behind the wall papers. From the wearing apparel left in the house it is supposed that several persons had been engaged in the work. The remnants of a suppor, which had only been partaken of recently, were also found in one of the rooms. The Paris National, which is a kind of way semi-official, supplies in its editorial remarks some information that throws light on this crime. It points out that a St. Petersburg telegram, received on Tuesday, stated that the police had arrested at Elisabethgrad, a station on the Moscow-Olessa Railway, a young man on whose person explosive materials were found concealed. It adds that since the development of the minlist agitation news of this description has been so frequent that it passas almost unperceived in Western Europe. But it concludes from the last outrage that these arrests are a fearful symptom of the political and social condition of the liusain Empire, and that the hote attempt on the Emperor's Hie proves that the members of secret societies have not been diminished in number, nor awed into inaction by the severity of the punishment meted out to such as have been found out. It adds that "It is be borne in mind that in the city of Moscow alone the service of the municipal police entails an annual outlay of over 1,580,7

THE CAPTURE OF PISAGUA

OFFICIAL BEPORT OF THE CHILEAN GENERAL-HEROIC RESISTANCE OF COLONEL GRANTER-

FIGHTING AT TARAPACA.

The detailed Chilean official report of the capture of Pisagua, received at Buenos Ayres November 9, states that that place was defended by only 1,200 Bolivians, under the command of Colonel Juan Gran-ier. They maintained a stubborn fight for five hours against all the expeditionary force supported by the well served artillery of the squadron, after which they retired, abandoning their positions only when useless to prolong the resistance. On the 3d the Chilean forces began their march inland. It is pied the railway from Equique to La Noria, a dis tance of thirty-nine miles.

The original report of General Erasmo Es transmitted to Santiago by telegraph from Anto fogosta, is as follows:— Pisagua, Nov. 3, 1879. TO THE MINISTER OF WAR:

To the Minister of War:—
Our operations upon the enemy's territory have begun with success. After navigating four and a hair days in order to bring together the convoy and organize the elements of attack we presented ourselves before Pi-squa at six A. M. of yesterday, November 2. After a recommaisance of the bay and of the enemy's defences the Cochrane opened fire at seven. The O'lliggins immediately followed, and soon afterward the Magallanes and the Covadonga. They speedily silenced a gun of small calibre mounted to the south of the port, and soon afterward the Magallanes and the Covadonga. They speedily silenced a gun of small calibre mounted to the south of the port, and soon afterward the landing of our troops began, with the object of dislocing the enemy from his formidable positions near the seashore.

After three hours of very severe fighting our soldiers raised the standard of Chile over the enemy's encampment, situated upon an almost inaccessible table land more than three hundred metres above the sea level. Meanwhile another division of our army proceeded to the little port of Junin. At three P. M. we already had 2,000 men masters of the legitis, and at the close of the day 3,000 Chileans more had entered the enemy's territory through the slight opening inland from a roadstead difficult of access. In a word, we now occupy a very important portion of Peruvian territory, and the unwearying efforts of our army will soon place us in a situation to dictate our conditions. The occupation of Pisagua costs us 300 men killed and wounsed. The losses of the enemy are much greater. I will soon send the detailed report.

A writ of attachment for $45,000 against James Morgan, a merchant of this city, at the suit of Lord, Magor & Munn, was contested to-day in the Insolvent Court. The case was not concluded.

The case developed the following particulars:-About three years ago Mr. James Morgan was about to retire from a business in which he had accumulated a considerable fortune. Some time, however, before bringing his determination into action he had several interviews with the firm of Lord, Magor & Munn, commission merchants, who agreed to advance him money to carry on pork packing, they holding a joint interest in the security for moneys advanced by them. Morgan gave them mortgages on his property for $40,000 at different mortgages on his property for $40,000 at different dates. After six months had clapsed declining health compelled him to resign an active interest, and during his illness which followed the husiness was in the hands of outside parties. Unfortunate speculations involved a loss, as Mr. Morgan says, to the amount of $63,000 inside of four months, the consequence being that when he was enabled to return to business he found that his enterprise had been seriously crippied. His backers some time afterward refused to advance any money and Mr. Morgan was obliged to suspend. The mortgage held by Lord, Magor and Munn was transferred to the Quebec Bapk as collateral for frequent accommodations.

G. T. BEAUREGARD. WOLFE'S SCHIEDAM AROMATIC

As a general beverage and necessary corrective of water rendered Impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as limestone, sulphate of copper, &c., the Ano MATIC SCHNAPPS is superior to every other alcoholic prep aration. A public trial of over 30 years' duration in every section of our country of Upolipho Wolfe's SCHNAPPS, its unsolicited indorsement by the medical fac ulty and a sale unequalled by any other alcoholic distilation, have insured for it the reputation of salubrity claimed for it. For sale by all druggists and grocers.

BRNSON'S CAPCINE PLASTERS are universally acknowledged to be greatly superior to the old style of porous plaster. They act quicker and their effect is more lasting and beneficial.

Over 2,000 druggists throughout the United States have ecently signed a paper stating that physicians say they are far superior to all other plasters. They are simply marvellous for subdaing and relieving pain. They are equally efficient in curing lame back, rhoumatism, stubborn coughs, spinal or kidney disease. Beware of imitations
